Nonprofit donates top designer clothing to nursing home staff

Michael Garcia Contributing writer

The Frank DeFrancisco Eastwood Community Center normally would have been empty on a Friday afternoon.

However, on a recent Friday, the place was buzzing with activity around a bunch of trash bags — but they weren't stuffed with useless junk.

The bags were lined up against the wall with paper taped to them that read "Women Small" and "Women Medium."

David Capria, a Rotary of Eastwood member, tore open one of the bags to pull out a black cotton shirt. He searched for a price tag to see if it was still attached.

"This one is probably around $200," Capria said.

COVID-19 created a financial loss for retailers around the country. Clothes from last year by Ralph Lauren remained untouched. Instead of throwing them away, they donated them all to nonprofit organizations.

Peace Inc., a nonprofit organization that began in 1968, was one of the organizations that received 18,000 articles of clothing. They ranged from all sizes, children to adults, business to casual.

As a way of saying thank you for their work during the pandemic, Peace Inc. has donated clothes to nursing home staff over the past two months.

Julie Sheedy, chief marketing and engagement officer for Loretto, met at the Frank DeFrancisco Eastwood Community Center recently with a moving truck. Clothes were going to staff at the nursing home's main location on East Brighton Avenue.

Eight hundred female employees will enjoy clothes for the summer, which includes shirts, dresses and shoes from last year's fashions.

"It's been a long journey for us," Sheedy said. "And they're (the staff) pretty stressed and a little bit burned out. So, this is amazing."

Nursing home staff in Syracuse struggled with staggering numbers of deaths in their facilities during the pandemic. In January, it was reported by syracuse.com that 340 nursing home residents had died.

Sheedy said Loretto staff already feel stressed after having to be tested for COVID-19 twice a week.

"It's a big commitment for them to make sure that they get tested," Sheedy said. "I probably had my 60th test myself."

Peace Inc. donated some of the clothes from Ralph Lauren, including coats and boots, to families during the winter. In addition, it gave clothes to Jordan-Elbridge High School students.

The organization still had clothes left over to give away to nursing homes and community centers like Loretto, Sunnyside Care Center and Syracuse Community Health Center. The total worth of the clothing donated came out to $3.75 million.

The New York State Police in Binghamton are asking for the public's help in finding a 12-year-old boy who has been missing since Friday.

Tamel M. Thompson was reported missing on Friday after leaving his home in the town of Kirkwood the day before, troopers said. Kirkwood is about 10 miles south-east of Binghamton.

Tamel was last seen riding his bicycle near Fayette Street in Binghamton and frequents the parks along that street. He has left his home in the past and was found in the area, but troopers haven't been able to find him yet this time, state police said.

Troopers ask that anyone who sees Tamel contact the New York State Police at 607-755-1241.

Man dies in single-vehicle rollover crash

A man died after being ejected from his truck early Sunday morning in East Syracuse, police said.

Police had not identified the victim as of Sunday afternoon.

DeWitt Police responded to a one-vehicle rollover crash on the railroad tracks at East Manlius Street and Hartwell Avenue at about 5:20 a.m. and found the man, who was the only person in the vehicle at the time of the accident, said DeWitt Police Capt. Brenton White.

The man was pronounced dead at the scene. It's unclear what caused the man to drive the truck off the roadway, White said.

The DeWitt Accident Investigation Team is still investigating the crash.

Police will release the name of the man after they notify his family members, White said. Megan Craig
